

NICNAS Risk Assessment Seminars

Registration Form

FORMALDEHYDE

The National Industrial Chemicals Notification and Assessment Scheme (NICNAS) has completed its risk assessment of formaldehyde.

A draft of NICNAS's assessment report will be released for public comment on 6 September 2005.

Public comment on the draft report can be made in the 28-day period from 6 September to 4 October 2005. As part of the process, the public is invited to attend a seminar on NICNAS's findings.

The seminar will cover:

- human health and environmental hazards,
- risk to workers, the general public and the environment from exposure to formaldehyde, and
- the draft recommendations to control the identified risks, such as lowering occupational exposure standards and setting an indoor air guidance level.

Schedule for NICNAS Formaldehyde risk assessment seminars – Registration for all seminars closes on 23/08/05.
